South Florida Welcomes Priests for Life (Newsmax, Trump Rally)

Pro-life activists in various parts of South Florida welcomed our National Director, Frank Pavone, on September 11th and 12th for a series of events that energized the local pro-life communities. Tewannah and John Aman, who coordinate the 40 Days for Life site in Ft. Lauderdale, had Fr. Frank speak at their kickoff rally held at a local Knights of Columbus Hall, where the Grand Knight welcomed him warmly. Weeks after the talk, Tewannah said, "People are still raving about how great it was. The best overview we've heard. Really powerful and inspiring."

John and Tewannah Aman, longtime prolife leaders in the area and friends of Priests for Life, organized the gathering. Tewannah is also part of the Silent No More Awareness Campaign.

The next morning, Fr. Frank led a prayer vigil in Miami at Eve Medical Clinic, an abortion mill,

Priests for Life Director Addresses Pastors from Across the Nation at the US Capitol

At the invitation of our longtime friends and allies at Wallbuilders (founded by David Barton and now led by his son Tim), Prolife Leader Frank Pavone spoke to a room full of pastors from across the country in Washington D.C.

With Tim Barton, current President of Wallbuilders, Cheryl Barton, and Pastor Lorenzo Sewell on Tuesday, September 15th. He told the gathering at the Capitol that the role of the Church in ending abortion was recognized even by the founder of the abortion industry, Dr. Bernard Nathanson (whom Fr. Frank knew personally). Dr. Nathanson said that he and his colleagues would never have gotten away with what they did if the priests had been "united, purposeful and strong."

Fr. Frank also pointed out the stark contrast between the Democrats (under whom the federal government set up a website telling people where to get abortions) and the Republicans (under whom the federal government took down the pro-abortion website and has now set up a website telling people where to find alternatives to abortion). On the National Day of Remembrance we prayed, grieved, and left flowers in front of the monument dedicated to the tens of millions of unborn children killed by abortion.

and from there went to the Catholic cemetery of Our Lady of Mercy, where the Archdiocese of Miami played a key role in hosting the National Day of Remembrance, an observance of which Fr. Frank is a co-founder. He spoke to the assembled group, which included Bishop Fernando Isern, about the history, nature and purpose of this annual observance, on which people pray at the gravesites and monuments of aborted children from coast to coast.

Adoption is the Loving Choice

Reliable statistics on adoption in the U.S. are hard to come by, but this much is certain: There are more families looking to adopt infants than there are babies available for adoption. Abortion claims the lives of about a million babies every year, and some statistics show that about two million couples are hoping to adopt. Every one of those aborted babies very likely would have found a home had their mothers chosen life.

November is National Adoption Awareness Month, so please keep those sobering numbers in mind. And please keep this in mind as well: The way we react to a woman facing an unplanned pregnancy can make all the difference in her life, certainly in her baby's life, and for those on a waiting list praying to become parents.

The support and encouragement a young woman gets from family, friends, even pastors and teachers can go a long way toward helping her make that loving choice, according to adoptive mother Terri Marcroft.

On the other hand, if everywhere she turns she's being nudged toward abortion, that can come to seem like the solution.

What a young woman facing an unexpected pregnancy might not realize is that open adoption, which is the norm now, can put her firmly in the driver's seat.

Ms. Marcroft, an adoptive mother who has written two books on adoption and founded the non-profit Unplanned Good, said birth mothers can choose the age, ethnicity, income and education level, faith, political leanings and virtually every aspect of a potentially adoptive family. Her daughter's birth mother wanted her baby to have lots of cousins; Terri and her husband were able to offer them in abundance.

"Our daughter was coming into a family with 16 cousins on the day she was born," Ms. Marcroft said.

All kinds of arrangements are possible with adoption. Ms. Marcroft promised the birth mother she would send pictures of the baby every two months, and for five years, that's what she did. Then the woman decided to join the military and wanted to get to know her daughter before she deployed, so she planned a visit, where she saw for herself the love that surrounded her daughter every day.

A birth mother's decision to choose life is both courageous and selfless and - unfortunately - rare. According to her research, Ms. Marcroft said only about 1 percent of women facing an unplanned pregnancy choose adoption.

"We need to be able to raise that number up," she said. "I would never imply that it's easy, because it's not. For young women considering their options, it might appear like the hardest thing to do. It's a rough road for a short time, but in the big picture, I do believe it can be the most beautiful outcome."

From September 23 through September 25, Prolife Leader Frank Pavone joined Matt Britton, one of the overall leaders of 40 Days for Life throughout the world, to visit several 40 Days vigil sites in Northern California for the kickoff of the Fall 2026 Campaign. Fr. Frank gave a speech at each location and led prayer. Here is the group in San Jose on the evening of September 24th in front of the local Planned Parenthood.

On Friday, September 11, Prolife Leader Frank Pavone visited the headquarters of Newsmax, for which he is a regular on-air guest and columnist, in Boca Raton, FL. Here he is in the studio with Ed Henry.

On September 3, National Director Frank Pavone spoke for the Grassroots for America group in Casselberry, FL about why we should have confidence that we can win the midterm elections.

Truth Uncensored Premieres on EndAbortion.TV

TITUSVILLE, FL - Truth Uncensored, a new podcast positioning itself at the intersection of faith and politics, is now available at EndAbortion.TV.

Priests for Life National Director Frank Pavone and Bishop Aubrey Shines, founder and pastor of G2G Ministries in Tampa, will host the show that will delve into issues of faith and the role it played in the founding of the United States and the part it continues to play in sustaining the nation 250 years later.

"This is something that's needed," said Bishop Shines, a Chicago native who began his ministry as a licensed evangelical pastor working with inmates in the Cook County Correctional System. He founded G2G (Glory to God) in 2002, and from a handful of members, it has grown into an 8,000-member church that is home to 21 different ethnic groups. Pavone has been leading Priests for Life since 1993 as its full-time national director. He is also the pastoral director of Rachel's Vineyard and the Silent No More Awareness Campaign and president of the National Pro-life Religious Council.

"We're committed to dialogue and we welcome pushback," Pavone said.

"We're not going to come at people with hate or disrespect. We welcome everyone."

Truth Uncensored will air at EndAbortion.TV and all the social media platforms linked there.

Bishop Shines had one request of his audience: "Pray for us."
